Esoteric Programming Languages

@POWrangers

What Are Esolangs?

Computer programming languages designed to experiment with new and weird ideas, to be hard to program in, or as a joke, rather than for practical use.

Main categories: proof of concept, competitive sport, display an artistic process and simply for entertainment.

"Some people say learning to program is hard, tedious and excruciating. For some reason, a group of people seems to think that programming itself isn't complicated enough, and thus 'esolang' was born!"

Some History

The first-ever esoteric programming language was CLWNPA aka INTERCAL in 1972.

The most popular esoteric languages are Brainfuck and Befunge, both from 1993.

A large number of the newer esoteric languages are heavily influenced by these two.

Hello world!

★ Piet

A composite image featuring a photograph of a nude woman sitting on a piano bench and playing a piano. The woman is seen from the side, facing right, with her hands on the keys. She has dark, curly hair and is wearing a dark collar. The background is slightly out of focus, showing some equipment and a window. Overlaid on the right side of the image is a large, tilted sheet of musical notation, specifically a bass clef staff with various notes and rests. The overall composition suggests a connection between the visual and the musical.
